Nuclear energy is not a future promise. It's the present reality.

The nuclear era has arrived and project delivery needs to meet the moment. The sector stands at a pivotal inflection point: demand for nuclear energy is accelerating, the workforce shortage is acute, and the question facing utility and federal contract leaders is not whether the work will happen, it is whether they have the integrated support infrastructure to execute and scale.

Waymaker Resource Group was built for this moment. Since 2014, we have worked on some of the most demanding projects in the commercial nuclear and federal sectors: Nuclear Restart (Palisades), active US and Global Commercial Fleet, EPU, SMR/AR, and installations across the Department of Energy and Department of Defense. We are a full-spectrum, expert-driven integrated delivery partner. From project management and technical staffing to electrical systems, cranes and critical lifting, we deliver precision, quality, safety, and accountability.

What sets us apart is the know-how and experience behind how we deliver results. Our Integrated Project Delivery model eliminates handoff gaps, meets deadlines, and sustains investment regardless of complexity.

When you bring in Waymaker, you bring a certified Minority and Small Disadvantaged Business partner who is NQA-1 compliant and contract-proven, already working at DOE, DOD, and commercial nuclear sites. Our value comes with the agility of a specialized firm and a bench of seasoned industry experts. It's time to move projects forward.

"At the end of the day, nuclear projects will succeed or fail depending on whether you have the right people and reliable suppliers in place when the work needs to happen."
